

Award for Excellence in Healthcare Service

Do you know someone who exemplifies service to healthcare and whose contributions to Grand County need recognition?

The Grand County Rural Health Network is accepting nominations for the 2019 Award for Excellence in Healthcare Service. The criteria are simple: in at least 500 words, please tell us about someone who best personifies service in healthcare and would be a worthy role model to be emulated by others.

Therese McElroy, RN was honored with the first ever award in 2013 for 50 years of service, most of which was in Grand County. We believe McElroy is our modern-day “Nurse Young”; she is a modern-day healthcare provider that truly shaped the way healthcare is provided and delivered in Grand County. McElroy has worked in a variety of settings locally, including the hospital, school nurse and home health. She is an example of excellence in healthcare service.

Past award recipients include: Therese McElroy, RN in 2013; Mary Jo Hargadine, RN in 2014; Hannah Foley, NP and Ray Jennings in 2015; Val Lind, RN in 2016; Wade Walker, RPh in 2017; and Heather Bentler, RN and John Nichols, MD

Award nominees should be in the healthcare field, either professionally or as a volunteer. They do not have to be a healthcare provider, but someone(s) who has significantly contributed to healthcare locally. Nominees are voted on and selected by the Board of Directors. Recipients are honored at the Network’s Bulls, Boots, and BBQ fundraiser on Thursday, August 15, 2019. Nominations due by May 24, 2019.
